THE LOUDEST BELCHER IN THE WEST!

THE PLINGE TWINS featuring ERIC and ERICA

GIRTH the world's fattest comic hero

Imagine the scene; relaxing on the deck of the most modern and luxurious ship in the world, sipping an ice-cold Taser as you glide through some crystal waters.

An attractive prospect? Certainly. But the directors of Thomas Crook shipping can't afford to do that until they've sold a few tickets for this GBH cruise on a crustily salvaged mackerel waste tanker.

And holiday prices start from just £5 million plus VAT (not including snorkel). *

*Ticket price example quoted is for 3 minutes on board an inflatable pedalo in a sewage settling tank somewhere near Birmingham next November, when it's raining.

1. Murph and his friends were very bored. There was nothing to do.

2. 'Come on!' said Grandmurph. 'Let's play a game to cheer ourselves up!'

3. They played a game impersonating their favourite animals. Foily pretended to be a cat, and Delilah was a chicken. Soon it was Murph's turn.

4. But just as Murph was about to start a giant foot came down from above and flattened him!

5. It was Tony Art who owned the studio they lived in. He hadn't been looking where he was walking. When he saw the brown mess all over his shoes he frowned. 'Possey dogs!' he snarled, and walked away.

6. 'What a brilliant impression of dog dirt!' said Grandmurph. 'Actually, it's an impression of a shoe - all over him,' said Foily, laughing at the treadmarks on Murph.

The Tale of Mouldie Socks and the 3 Boars

ONE MORNING, THE BOARS RETURNED FROM A WALK TO FIND THE FRONT DOOR OPEN...

"Somebody's been sitting in my porridge!" said Daddy Boar.

"Somebody's been sitting in my porridge!" said Mummy Boar.

"Somebody has been sitting in my porridge, too!" said Baby Boar.

"Not only that - Somebody has been eating my chair!" exclaimed Daddy Boar.

"Somebody's been eating My chair!" said Mummy Boar.

"Someone has been eating the sofa, too!" observed Baby Boar.

Just then, Mouldie Socks appeared from behind the curtains.

"I'm terribly sorry!" she said. "I thought it was the suite you could eat between meals!"

AND EVERYBODY LAUGHED.

SO... THEY ALL LIVED HAPPY EVER AFTER.

(Except Mouldie Socks. The socks got hot for breakfast instead.)
